CONDUCTED BY

THE BROTHERS OF THE CHRISTIAN SCHOOLS.

The object of this Institution is to afford students the means of acquiring the highest grade of university education, by combining the advantages of a college and of a polytechnic school. The plan of studies embraces a thorough course of humanities, and both the higher mathematics and the natural sciences receive more attention than is usually bestowed on them in literary institutions.

Before receiving any degree, the classical student is required to translate with facility the various Greek and Latin works mentioned in the course, and to speak the latter language fluently and well; while the student of science must evince an accurate knowledge of calculus, astronomy, chemistry, natural philosophy, etc.

Care is taken that every branch prescribed be thoroughly studied, and that nothing be learned merely by rote. With this view the students discuss the subject-matter of each lesson in class, independently of the language of the text-book, criticise one another's performances, and give free expression to their opinions on all points open to debate. They thus accu-multate ideas instead of mere words, they digest what they learn, and acquire thoughtfulness, self-reliance and facility of expression.

Since the vernacular language and literature, no less than the ancient languages and the sciences, constitute an essential feature of a sound education, they are studied throughout the course in every form which has received the approval of the most experienced and most successful educators.

Besides being carefully instructed in the analytical principles of the language, every student is required, not only to take part in oral discussions on rhetoric, logic, moral philosophy, etc., but also to write weekly essays which are submitted to the criticism of the whole class, and are finally commented upon by the professor in charge.

The studies of the preparatory classes embrace various grades, so that parents who wish their children to enter the institution at an early age may meet with no obstacle.

A commercial department has been formed for the benefit of young men who cannot command the necessary time to pursue the whole course, either in the classic or the scientific department. To those attaining such proficiency in this course as will enable them to undergo a thorough examination before experienced book-keepers and accomplished business men, certificates of competency are given as a guarantee of their fitness to engage in mercantile pursuits.

Ample arrangements are made for the encouragement of those who have a taste for the fine arts. Instructions are given in drawing, modelling, sculpture and painting, by artists of acknowledged merit and distinction; and the Faculty are of opinion that every student should learn at least the rudiments of drawing, since it is not only ornamental, but useful in a very high degree.

Those who pursue the course of the natural sciences have the advantage of access to the excellent museum of the College, which contains collections on zoölogy and mineralogy not surpassed by any private collection in the United States.

The College occupies an elevated position on the east bank of the Hudson River. The location is not surpassed in landscape, beauty, or salubrity. It commands an extensive view of the river, comprising some of its grandest and most picturesque scenery.

Aware that physical training is as necessary to a thorough education as mental culture, the Faculty have spared no pains to secure for their students all the advantages to be derived from approved modes of exercise. Ample facilities are afforded for boating, fishing and salt water bathing. This last invigorating exercise is one of the principal enjoyments of the students during the warm summer months.

The College is sufficiently far from the city to secure that quietude which is essential to persevering and successful study; and yet near enough to afford easy access to the principal public libraries, art galleries, zoölogical and geological collections, etc.

In the vicinity are several places of interest which the students are permitted to visit, once or twice a week, under the surveillance of one of the prefects. Ten minutes' walk takes them to some of the most attractive parts of Central Park, and they reach High Bridge in twenty minutes.

As the College is conducted by the Brothers of the Christian Schools, it is presumed they need hardly assure the public that while the religion of the non-Catholic portion of the students is not interfered with, the utmost attention is bestowed on the moral training of all confided to their care.

THE COLLEGIATE SESSION.

The Collegiate Session is divided into two terms. The first begins on the first Monday in September ; the second on the first of February.

All newly admitted students must present a certificate of character.

No general examinations for admission are held. On being admitted, each student is privately examined, and classified according to his attainments.

There are two written examinations—one in January, the other at the end of the term. These examinations occupy at least two weeks.

Failure in the semi-annual examinations prevents the student's promotion with his class.

Weekly records of the progress of the students in each branch are read in the classes by the President, and summarized reports of the same are furnished parents at Christmas, Easter, and the end of the session.

The students are divided into three divisions, each having a special prefect, thus securing complete separation of the younger from the older students.

The discipline of the College is committed to the President, who relies mainly on paternal advice and moral influence to secure propriety of conduct, diligence, and gentlemanly deportment.

The course pursued in this department of the College, while the same in general as the Classical Course, differs from it in not giving so much attention to Classics, and in making a more extended course of Natural Sciences and Mathematics, both pure and applied.

Students who shall have passed a satisfactory examination in the Scientific Course will receive the degree of Bachelor of Science.

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT.

The Commercial Department is thoroughly organized, and in addition to the branches ordinarily taught in Commercial Schools, there is a good course of English Composition, Elocution, Natural Philosophy, and Chemistry. The course is now so arranged, that a student who receives a diploma in this Department, can take up the Scientific Course and graduate in due time.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

The Preparatory Department of the College is complete and well conducted. The students of this department form a separate division.

RELIGIOUS AND LITERARY SOCIETIES.

There are several societies in the College, partaking at once of a religious and literary character. The object is to foster a spirit of piety and devotion, making the frequent use of the Sacraments and the practice of easily retained forms of devotion characteristic of societies otherwise purely secular in their workings.

The history and spirit of these devotions are carefully explained.

Several literary and musical entertainments have been given the College patrons by these societies.

These literary entertainments are found to be among the most efficient means by which the students acquire self-possession, ease of diction and grace of delivery.
